

Patient Rights and Responsibilities

You may request a handout of these rights

We know that meeting your health care needs requires trust between you and the people taking care of you. As a patient of Orange City Area Health System, our goal is to protect your rights. You also have responsibilities. Knowing them will help you to make the best choices about your care. Your rights and responsibilities can be read to you in a language you best understand. If you are not able to make choices for yourself, your legal representative may do so on your behalf.

You have the right to be treated with courtesy

You have the right to have treatment. You will be treated with respect and worth regardless of your:

- Age
- Race
- Country of origin
- Religion
- Beliefs
- Language
- Physical and/or mental status
- Biological sex
- Sexual orientation
- Gender identity or expression
- Type of sickness
- If you are able to pay for your care

You have the right to know the names and duties of all the people involved in your care

Staff should:

- Tell you their name.
- Tell you their role in your care.
- Give you their work phone number and address when asked.

You have the responsibility to treat others with courtesy

It is important to treat others with the same respect and value that you would want for yourself and our family. This includes other patients, their visitors, staff and providers who are giving you care. In the health care environment, you can do this by:

- No loud voices.
- No foul language/swearing.
- Limit the number of guests visiting you at one time.
- Keep a quiet environment when guests are visiting.
- Use your T.V., radio, and phones as you need, but quietly.
- No weapons of any kind.
- No physical or verbal threats or abuse.

You have the right to privacy

Your personal privacy is an important part of your care. We will respect your privacy during:

- Your exams.
- Your talks with your provider and staff.

While you are an Orange City Area Health System patient, you have the right to:

- Have a person of your same sex in the room with you during certain parts of an exam or care.
- Close the curtain around your bed.
- Close your door for privacy.
- Respect and privacy during bathing and/or other cares.
- Ask for no guests to visit you.
- Ask for your status to be confidential.
- Privacy of your:
 - Mail
 - Phone calls
 - Emails
- Have staff knock on the door and ask to come into your room.

Your right to privacy may be limited for safety reasons.

You have the responsibility to respect the privacy of others

We ask that you be considerate of other patients. Give them privacy and a quiet environment.

You have the right to confidentiality

Your information is confidential. We will respect your privacy when talking about your health/medical care.

Your health care record and financial information will be read:

- Only by the health care team involved in your care.
 - For health care daily work.
 - For billing and insurance reasons.
- As health care providers, we are legally required to report information to state and federal agencies. This information may include, but is not limited to:
- Harm after a crime
 - Suspected abuse and neglect
 - Public health concerns
 - Duty to warn if someone is in imminent danger from another person.

- You also have the right to receive copies of your medical records within a reasonable time frame.

You have the responsibility to respect the confidentiality of others

We ask that you respect the privacy of other patients and families. Do not:

- Look into other patient rooms.
- Ask staff for information about other patients.
- Ask staff why a person/patient is here at Orange City Area Health System.

You have the right to information about your treatment

Your diagnosis and proposed treatment will be explained to you in terms and language that you can understand. You may have family members or friends included in this discussion.

You can expect your provider to explain:

- Your diagnosis.
- Other choices for care or treatment.
- The risks and benefits for each of these choices.
- Likely outcomes.

As an Orange City Area Health System patient, you can expect:

- Information about pain and pain relief measures.
- Staff commitment to partner with you to manage your pain.
- Staff who will listen and respond to your reports of pain.

You have the responsibility to ask for clear explanations

If you do not understand your medical problem and/or your treatment plan is not clear to you, you must tell your health care team. You are responsible for asking questions if you do not understand.

You should ask:

- Why is this treatment suggested?
- What other choices do I have?
- What might be the results of this treatment?
- Is this treatment new and/or experimental?
- How long will this treatment take?
- What will this treatment cost?
- What are the risks of this treatment?
- What are the side effects of this treatment?
- What are the credentials of the person providing this treatment?

When you and your provider agree on the best treatment for you, it is important that you follow this plan.

- Partial treatment may not help you.
- If you cannot follow the treatment plan, you need to tell a staff member.

You have the right to make decisions about your care

We value the partnership between you and your caregivers. We want you to have an active role in your own health care.

We respect your right to:

- Choose your provider.
 - This may be at your own cost. Some care models such as Psychiatry, Hospitalists, and Laborists do not allow switching providers unless extreme issues arise.

- Communicate with your provider.
 - Give informed consent after you receive a clear explanation of:
 - Your disease.
 - The risks and benefits of the treatment and other options you may choose.
 - Ask for the right care.

 - If you were given a complete explanation for the transfer need.
 - If you were given other options than the transfer.
 - A prompt response to your questions and requests.
 - Give your consent or decline to be a part of research studies.
 - Refuse a diagnostic procedure or treatment.
 - Be told of what may happen if you refuse the procedure or treatment.
 - Consult with a different specialist.
 - Help to develop and carry out your plan of care.
 - Have your spiritual and/or cultural needs met. If these needs may impact your care, you will need to tell your doctor and/or the staff taking care of you.
 - Know of any professional relationship that may exist between:
 - Your provider
 - Other institutions
 - Orange City Area Health System

- You may be treated without consent if:
- There is a medical emergency.
 - Immediate action must be taken for your well-being.
 - There is a court-ordered mandate.

You have the responsibility to make informed decisions

You are responsible for the decisions you make about your care. We encourage you to gather as much information about your illness as you can. This will help you to make an informed decision. You may be asked to sign a written consent for tests and/or procedures.

- Make sure you understand each document that you are asked to sign.
- If you change your mind or refuse treatment:
 - Tell the staff right away.
 - Talk to your provider about your concerns and/or reasons.

You have a right to develop an Advance Directive

Advance Directives are written instructions for a patient's health care in the event they are unable to make or communicate decisions. As part of an Advance Directive, a patient may choose someone to make health care decisions for them.

An Advance Directive may also be known as or include a:

Orange City Area Health System's policy is to follow a patient's Advance Directive once we have knowledge of its contents and the extent to which it is consistent with the law and reasonable standards of medical practice. If a provider cannot honor an Advance Directive, the option of transferring the patient's care to another provider who will comply with the patient's wishes must be discussed. You are not required to have an Advance Directive. Orange City Area Health System will not condition care or discriminate against you based on whether or not you have an Advance Directive.

If you have an Advance Directive, you have a responsibility to:

- Give your provider a current copy of your Advance Directive.
- Talk with the person you have selected as your decision maker about your wishes for your care.
- Remove or replace an advanced care directive if it is no longer current. Failing to do so may lead to Orange City Area Health System giving care in a manner that is no longer in line with your wishes.
